

Gail M Chavez-Frazer

December 12, 1957 - January 21, 2026

Gail Marlene Chavez Frazer, a resident of Las Vegas, Nevada, and a woman of immense strength, passed away on January 21, 2026.

Gail lived her life with a sharp mind, a hard-working spirit, and an unapologetic authenticity that defined her every move.

Gail was a true entrepreneur who built her own house-cleaning business from the ground up. She was the definition of self-made, proving through decades of labor that you could be your own boss. While she had recently reached a well-earned retirement, her family mourns that she didn't get more time to enjoy the rest she worked so hard for. However, the legacy of her work ethic remains in the children she raised to be independent and tough—teaching them to stand on their own.

Her favorite color was red our mom always took great pride in her appearance she always made sure she had her make-up done her hair always pretty and of course she always wore her gold jewelry.

To her family, she was a straight-shooter who loved a cold Coors Light and a good laugh. She was famous for her favorite phrase: "So what's your point?"

She didn't take anyone's "shit" and she didn't expect life to be easy.

Gail is survived by her mother, Rebecca; her sisters, Natalia and Victorianna ; her brother, Harvey; and her children: daughter Nilda Davila her son-n-law William Davila, daughter Alexandria Sanchez, her son, Pablo Sanchez. She also leaves behind five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren who knew her as "Nana."

She is now peacefully reunited with those who preceded her in death: her beloved husband, Charles Frazer; her infant son, Salvador; her father, Johnny; and her brother, Dean.

Gail's life was a testament to resilience. She didn't just tell her children how to be strong; she showed them every single day. She will be deeply missed, but her "tell-it-like-it-is" spirit lives on in everyone she loved. We love you Mom.
