

Maria De La Paz Magyar

January 24, 1944 - June 14, 2025

Beloved mother, wife, and the heart of her family, Maria De La Paz Magyar passed away surrounded by love and light. Born in Sinaloa, Mexico, Maria's roots were grounded in strength, humor, and deep devotion to those she loved.

She was a woman of grace and grit — intelligent, warm, and fiercely resilient. Her family was her proudest accomplishment, and she poured her love into every role she held: mother, wife, friend, and colleague. Professionally, she climbed into management at major corporations like IBM and Alcoa, where her reputation for leadership and dependability made her the go-to whenever another branch needed support.

Maria had an extraordinary sense of humor — often silly, always sincere. She loved Mariachi music and had a soft spot for 80s hits like Electric Avenue by Eddy Grant, The Reflex by Duran Duran, and anything by Michael Jackson. She'd wait for her favorite lyrics to come up and joyfully belt them out — even if they were the only lines she knew — always getting a laugh.

She was fearless. If someone tried to intimidate her, she stood her ground without hesitation. A relentless hard worker, Maria always found a way to provide — even during difficult times, she made ends meet with creativity and determination until she found her next opportunity.

Maria was the heart, soul, and glue of her family — the one who held everything and everyone together. Her legacy lives on in the strength of her children, the love she gave unconditionally, and the countless memories she created with laughter, loyalty, and light.
