

Paul Marceau

September 8, 1943 - September 3, 2024

Paul Marceau passed away on September 3, 2024, at the age of 80, following a brief illness. Paul emigrated to the United States from Europe in 1969 and was often described as an international man of mystery by those who knew him best.

Paul led a vibrant and creative life. He worked as an executive chef at numerous elegant restaurants and even opened his own successful restaurant, the Monarch Butterfly, in the late 1970s. He then turned his focus to the music industry and founded a music recording company. He enjoyed roulette and was always eager to teach strategies on how to win money at the roulette table. In his later years, he was an avid painter and viewed any surface as his canvas.

Paul's beloved wife and partner of 38 years, Maria, passed away two days after him. He is survived by his son, Luc Marceau (Catherine), and grandsons John and Nathan Marceau, along with family in Europe. The family will hold a private ceremony to honor Paul's life.
