

Tolentino Intong Tan

December 27, 1946 - December 13, 2025

Tolentino Tan was a man of quiet strength, few words, and meaningful deeds. To those who knew him best, he was a steadfast protector, a devoted provider, and a constant source of stability.

To his wife, Chris Tan, Tony was a devoted husband. While he was not perfect—as none of us are—what mattered most was his unwavering commitment to providing and protecting his family. He ensured she always had a home and supported her in building a business when she first began her life in Las Vegas. Throughout the years, he continued to support both Chris and their daughter in the group care business, standing beside them with quiet dedication.

To his daughter, Sarah Sabrina Tan, he was a remarkable father—one who ensured she was cared for, supported, and prepared for life. He made sacrifices so she could attend private school, provided her with a driver and a nanny, and later, when she came to the United States for college, he gifted her her first car and ensured she graduated without student loans. Through his foresight and generosity, he laid the foundation for the life she lives today. Though not a man of many words, his love was evident through his actions, and his presence will be carried in her heart forever.

Tony was a kind, loving, and generous husband and father whose devotion was shown through responsibility, loyalty, and care. This year, Tony and Chris would have celebrated 57 years of marriage, a testament to a lifetime shared. She will cherish their memories now and forever.

Tolentino “Tony” Tan leaves behind a legacy of love, provision, and steadfast presence. Though deeply missed, his impact lives on through the lives he shaped and the family he loved so deeply.

Forever remembered. Forever cherished.
